Model Organism And Techniques Used In Developmental Biology

Session Time: 10:30 A.M. to 12:30 P.M

Venue: Seminar Hall
Organised by: IIC
Participants: 57

About the program

The ability to understand developmental processes requires appropriate organisms. The field of genetics established the precedent of focusing research on a few reference or "model" organisms such as Drosophila or maize. Recent developmental biology has depended on a small number of organisms for much of its spectacular progress. This concentration of effort facilitates attempts to advance in the analysis of the basic processes down to the molecular level. On the other hand, there is no single organism that could be selected to study all fundamental events and aspects of development because each developmental pattern leads to a particular species and not to a generalized animal. From the egg of Drosophila, a fruit fly arises, not an insect in general, not a fish, and not a human being. General principles are only recognized when the events of development are studied in several diverse organisms, which develop differently yet display some common features. In addition, laboratory work quickly reveals that even the best model organism exhibits, in addition to its particular advantages, specific disadvantages. Thus the zebra fish has transparent embryos, but large-scale genetic studies require hundreds of aquariums and a staff of workers, and the fruit fly has a wealth of developmental mutants but cannot be conveniently frozen for long-term storage.

Affiliated to Kerala university of health science, Trissur

Approved by govt of Kerala and PCI, New Delhi

PROGRAM SUMMARY

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

She space, Women cell of Nirmala college of Pharmacy celebrated the International Women's Day on March 8, 2023 in the college auditorium, under the theme, DigitALL: Innovation and technology for gender equality.

The programme started at 2:30pm with prayer song, followed by welcome address by Ms. Maria C George of 8th sem B.Pharm. Felicitation address was given by the Principal, Dr. Badmanaban R, highlighting the importance of appreciating women in life.

Media Club of college presented a short video on highlighting the greatness of women in different fields, followed by which dance club performed theme dance for the day. (https://youtu.be/I0VE82s8ub0)

The main highlight of the day was the talk led by Mr.Babu Ganganath on the topic Money Management, which was a though provoking session to the students.

As a part of the commemoration of women's day, Poster presentation competition was held for students on the topic DigitALL: Innovation and technology for gender equality. Prizes were distributed for the winners in competition.

Vote of thanks was delivered by Ms. Junia George and the programme was concluded by Nation all Anthem.

National Energy Conservation Day

_Date: 14 December 2022

Session Time: 09:30 A.M. to 11:30 A.M

Venue: Auditorium Organised by : IIC Participants: 46

14th of December is celebrated as the national energy conservation day by the people all over the India on. In the year of 2001, the Bureau of Energy Efficiency (BEE) executed the Energy Conservation Act in India. In the following article let us take a walkthrough the significance of this particular day.

About the program National Energy Conservation Day solely aims to make the country aware of the effects and its causes of the Energy which is used by every people in the World. It implies the importance and sustainability of natural resources.

It is very crucial and essential for every people around the world to follow the National Energy Conservation Day. National Energy Conservation Day solely aims to make the country aware of the effects and its causes of the Energy which is used by every people in the World. It implies the importance and sustainability of natural resources.

Formal education on the importance of energy is very important for every people and mostly for the young generations who are the future of the country and can make every people carry out many of the developmental tasks for the betterment of the people.

Pharma Hackathon 2023

Date: 13 January 2023

Session Time: 09:30 A.M. to 04:30 P.M

Venue: Auditorium Organised by: IEDC

Participants: Students – B. Pharm & Pharm D

About the program

Pharm Hackathon 2023, a competition on presentation of solutions for a given problem has been conducted on 13th January 2023. 17 Student teams have presented their innovative ideas for the given problem. The jury of the competition were Dr. Dhanish Joseph, Associate professor, Department of Pharmaceutics and Mr. Jobin Kunjumon, Assistant prfessor, Department of Pharmacy Practice.

Hackathon: Problem Statement

In most of the times a healthy person is identified to have a serious disease only after starting some severe symptoms. Up to the stage of showing symptoms, the disease may undisclosed. So, can we develop a system to diagnose/treat/manage/prevent such a situation with the help of innovative technologies and therapeutic system?

About the program

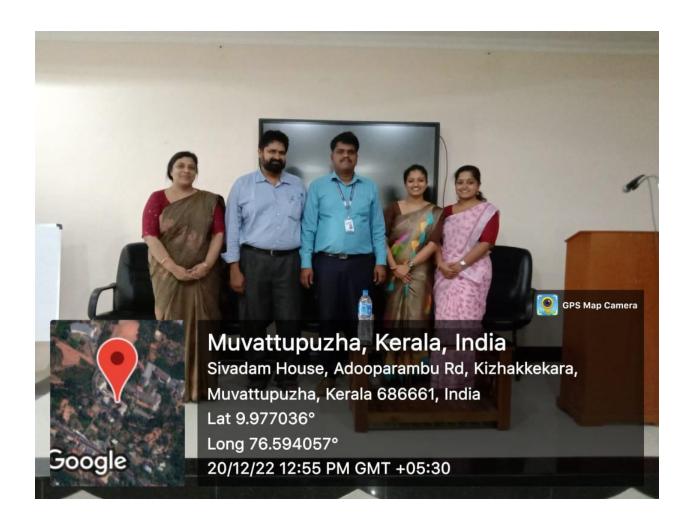

The role of pharmacokinetics (PK) in drug discovery is to support the optimisation of the absorption, distribution, metabolism and excretion (ADME) properties of lead compounds with the ultimate goal to attain a clinical candidate which achieves a concentration-time profile in the body that is adequate for the desired efficacy and safety profile. A thorough characterisation of the lead compounds aiming at the identification of the inherent PK liabilities also includes an early generation of PK/PD relationships linking in vitro potency and target exposure/engagement with expression of pharmacological activity (mode-of-action) and efficacy in animal studies. The exposure-centred approach to lead generation, lead optimisation and candidate selection and profiling that focuses on a stepwise generation of an understanding between PK/exposure and PD/efficacy relationships by capturing target exposure or surrogates thereof and cellular modeof-action readouts in vivo. Once robust PK/PD relationship in animal PD models has been constructed, it is translated to anticipate the pharmacologically active plasma concentrations in patients and the human therapeutic dose and dosing schedule which is also based on the prediction of the PK behaviour in human as described herein. Outlines how the level of confidence in the predictions increases with the level of understanding of both the PK and the PK/PD of the new chemical entities (NCE) in relation to the disease hypothesis and the ability to propose safe and efficacious doses and dosing schedules in responsive patient populations. A sound identification of potential drug metabolism and pharmacokinetics (DMPK)-related development risks allows proposing of an effective de-risking strategy for the progression of the project that is able to reduce uncertainties and to increase the probability of success during preclinical and clinical development.

Preplacement Orientation on "Opportunities in Medical Scribing"

Resource Person: Mr Suresh V, Vice President HR, HR Head for Aquity India Pvt Ltd. (PAN India)

Audience: VII Sem B.Pharm, VI PharmD

Date and Time: 16/12/22, 11.00 AM

Venue : Seminar Hall

The program started with a welcome address by Dr Gifty M Jojo , Asst. Professor, Coordinator , Training and Placement Cell. It was followed by a Felicitation by Dr Prasanth B, Professor, Head, Training and Placement Cell.

Mr. Suresh V, Vice President HR, Aquity Solutions India Pvt. Ltd. started with an outline of career prospects in Medical Scribing. Sir introduced Aquity as India's leading measurement-based healthcare documentation services provider for healthcare systems and practises. He explained in detail regarding the Career Path in Aquity Solutions starting from Medical Scribe Trainee to CEO. He stressed the necessity that pharma graduates should enter into the field as they are the best person in checking prescription errors and upon discussion with Physicians in drug related matters can contribute to improved health care. He pointed out that Aquity is going to actively recruite around 1000 Medical Scribers into the company. He discussed in detail the basic skill a candidate should require for starting a profession in Medical Scribing. Sir also cleared the students queries as Salary Pattern and other benefits.

The program concluded with a Vote of Thanks by Ms. Janice Jackson, VI PharmD Intern student. It was followed by the registration procedure for the recruitment procedure.

SEMINAR ON "PREPARATION FOR A CAREER IN REGULATORY AFFAIRS".

RESOURCE PERSON:

MS ANJITHA ROY

CONSULTANT REGULATORY SPECIALIST RRDM

GLAXO SMITHKLINE (GSK)

BANGALORE.

(ALUMNUS NCP)

AUDIENCE: VI PHARMD AND VII SEMESTER B.PHARM

DATE: 16/12/22 FRIDAY

TIME: 2.00 PM

VENUE: SEMINAR HALL

The program started with a Welcome speech by Dr Prasanth B, Professor, Head: Training and Placement Cell. Dr Anjitha Roy started with an Introduction to the subject Regulatory Affairs. She discussed the details of work pattern she has to adopt in the industry ie, Glaxo Smithkline. She elaborated in detail regarding the regulatory guidelines for Dossiers in different countries. She focussed on the details of online courses one can undergo during their studies which are related to regulatory affairs as well as their platforms. She detailed the common terminologies which come across in Regulatory affairs. The different position in Regulatory affairs as well as the companies offering those positions were being explained. The queries raised by the students as career prospects were being answered.
